

Setting up and Using Completion Tracking

The completion tracking feature adds check boxes next to activities and resources on the main course pages. These check boxes allow a learner to quickly see which activities he/she has and hasn't completed. Instructors can decide if they prefer the check boxes to be selected manually by learners or checked automatically by Moodle after a learner meets the completion requirement for that item, e.g. a score, viewing it, etc. Completion tracking can be used by instructors wishing to use the conditional release of activities.

Default activity completion

The Default activity completion section allows teachers to choose the type of activities or resources that students can manually mark as complete.

The screenshot shows the 'Default activity completion' settings page in Moodle. The page title is 'Default activity completion' in green. There are three tabs: 'Course completion', 'Default activity completion' (selected), and 'Bulk edit activity completion'. Below the tabs, there is a section titled 'Select the activities you wish to bulk edit.' with a blue 'Edit' button. A table lists activities with checkboxes for selection and completion tracking options. The table has two columns: 'Activities / resources' and 'Completion tracking ?'. The activities listed are Assignments, BigBlueButtonBN, and Books. All three have their completion tracking set to 'Manual'.

These settings apply to all Moodle activity types, not only to a particular activity or learning object in your course. To edit any of the settings, click Edit.

Here you can modify the actions you would like to edit for all activities of a certain type across your course.
