

Showing and Hiding Course Content

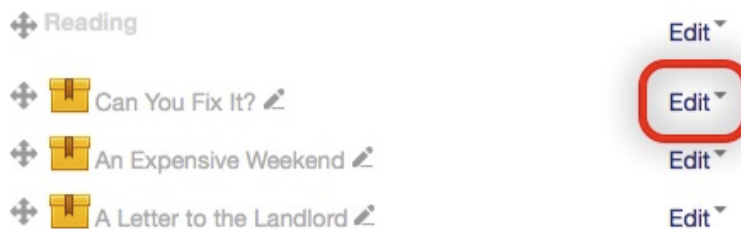

The LINC courseware is distributed with the topics (sections) visible, but all activities within the sections hidden. Before using the courseware with students, teachers need to make the course content visible. Teachers may also want to hide the topics in the courseware they are not using.

Showing/Hiding Activities and Resources

1. On your course home page, Click on the Turn editing on button

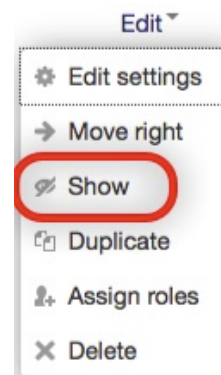

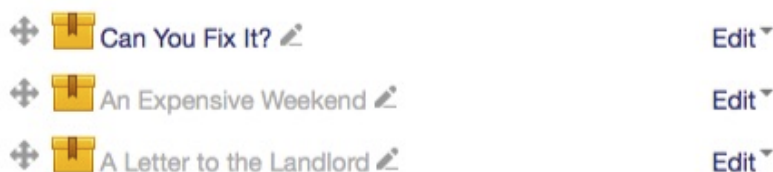

Turn editing on

- The topics expand and all of the activities appear on the course home page with some editing icons visible. Activities and labels that are hidden look appear with light grey text.

- To access the Hide and Show features, an instructor must click on Edit feature
- A drop down menu appears with the show-editing icon.

- After clicking the show button for an item (in this example, Can You Fix It?) the activity is visible and appears as below .

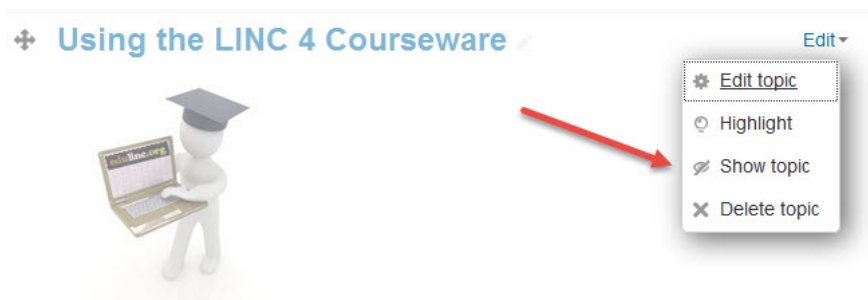

- Click on Edit and Hide [] to hide the activity from students.

Hiding/Showing Course Topics

- A topic heading that is not hidden appears like this (when the editing icons are displayed in the drop down menu):

- It can be hidden by clicking the Hide [] button in the drop down menu. After clicking it, a topic heading will appear as:

- Note that the Hide button is now a Show button and that all content in the topic is greyed out.
- Clicking the Show button for this topic will make the topic visible and revert the visibility of all its content to state it was in before the Hide button was clicked.
